

“They were my voice when I couldn’t speak, provided a wheelchair
when I could no longer walk, listened when I was afraid and gave me hope when little could be found.”

■ ALS PATIENT

ALS (Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis) is a neuro-muscular disease of the brain and spinal cord commonly known as Lou Gehrig’s Disease. Fifteen people are diagnosed with ALS every day in the United States.

St. Peter’s ALS Regional Center is the only specialized center of its kind across 14 upstate New York counties, offering:

- Free ALS health assessment
- Free counseling, education and support for patients, family and friends
- Loaning of communication and medical equipment
- Consultations with specialized health care providers
- Drug therapies and symptom management
- Advocacy, bereavement follow-up, and more...

Do you know someone who has been diagnosed with ALS?

Tell them about us. We can help.

St. Peter’s ALS Regional Center

A Member of St. Peter’s Health Care Services

(518) 525-1629